Freedom; The Common Message of Easter and Passover

As Jews celebrate Passover today (on this Friday), Christens will celebrate Easter on Sunday.

Both holidays are extremely important for each of the religions and many celebrate the events not only as believers but also as a tradition.

Both are celebrated nearly at the same time, and that is not by way of coincident.

Last Supper

Passover commemorates the release of the Israelites from decades of slavery in ancient Egypt.

It is therefore about the notion that freedom is a right while recognizing that freedom may not come easy.

The story of Easter begins centuries later, this time while the Roman Empire ruled Jerusalem. Jesus was Jewish when he arrived from Nazareth to Jerusalem.

It is during the days of Passover that Jesus is judged, beaten and crucified. Three days later Jesus was resurrected, overcoming death.

Coming back to life, Jesus achieves the greatest victory of human history; beating death itself, and securing the salvation of mankind. "Death is conquered, man is free, and Christ has won the victory".

In both stories, we see that Victory of a man, a nation and mankind equal freedom.

Jesus did not free the Israeli nation from the slavery of the Roman Empire, but he did manage to free the mind and soul of many who followed his steps.

Today, in the modern world, we are free of the slavery of empires, but often our minds are not free.

I am talking about a battle of liberation of another kind. In this war, we are the jailers and our thoughts and hopes are imprisoned.

The greatest obstacle to progress and change is the lack of faith that change can come and bring bright freedom. The blind belief that the future and reality can show otherwise.

When we celebrate Passover and Easter we shall remember that we celebrate events that many people and generations considered as 'impossible' to happen or occur.

But here we celebrate the 'impossible' becoming 'possible'. All it takes is faith in your heart and trust in your soul to follow the steps of a leader.

Passover Seder - Poland 1919.

In everyday life, you see and then you believe. In a life-changing event, you believe and then you see.

Your mind and soul are truly free only when you are able to believe in the 'impossible', and act to make it 'possible'.

Now tell me; do you still think that fighting pests is impossible without sprays?

Millions of people believe that; The 10 plagues are possible. The Exodus is possible. The resurrection is possible.

But the very same people are skeptical about the small thing of agriculture and feeding people without sprays.

Our generation will bring redemption to agriculture and to the world in the form of environmentally friendly technological solutions to pests. Hence, enable the supply of more and healthier food.

It is up to you and your beliefs, if you take part in bringing the 'new reality' or stand aside watching as others, believers, once again turn the Impossible into Possible.

How much faith do you have in your heart? How far are you willing to go to achieve a higher goal, how much are you willing to do to change the Impossible to the Possible?

Together let's make fruit flies;
'just another pest'!

P.S. Webinars; the live seminars. About 50 people took part in 2 webinars.

For me, it was something to remember. I worked hard to get it ready.

I planed the seminars to be 3 hours (not so short :- ) ), but the first webinar lasted 3 hours and 40 minutes, and the second... 4 hours and 45 minutes. The difference in times is due to your great interest.

Biofeed is doing something big, something with a human historical significance.

The huge interest of the audience, the desire to generate business with Biofeed and the positive feedback we received, says it all.

I thank you for your faith and trust in Biofeed's Green way!

I now plan the next webinar (this time for less than 3 hours) and will let you know when I am ready and have a date. Go here for pre-registration (I will update you when registration begins).
